

Appendix II to the school regulations: dealing with misconduct of pupils and enhancing positive conduct at secondary level

Preamble: Local UAE law always precedes school internal regulations.

1. Expectations of pupils SECONDARY LEVEL

- Arriving at lessons punctually
- Having work material ready
- Following instructions given by the teachers
- Behaving politely and courteously towards all member of staff at the DISD and its pupils
- Tolerating and respecting the views and opinions of others
- Completing homework
- Treating school property with due care
- Following the instructions and regulations of the school
- Showing tolerance towards other religions, nationalities, identities or social backgrounds.

2. Positive enhancing system SECONDARY LEVEL

It is important that excellent achievements and positive conduct by pupils are recognised. The DISD has two ways of doing this:

- a) Awarding excellent achievements
- b) Positive merits and voluntary work in the school system

Head of level award

The subject teachers and class teacher may recommend individual pupils to the head of level for their special achievements in the academic, sports, arts/music field or social commitment. The pupil will receive a head of level award for five recommendations from different subject teachers.

In addition these pupils will receive a prize from the school management in the big school assembly at the end of the year.

Entrepreneurship and community work

The school offers ample leeway if the pupils want to test their “entrepreneurial” skills for the good of the community or wish to campaign for an improvement in the atmosphere of the school.

These own initiatives include being in charge of lockers, selling roses on Valentine’s Day, selling cakes for donations, environmental club, extra tuition club, etc.

3. Support system for pupils with behavioural problems

The DISD has a four-level procedural system that supports pupils with behavioural problems.

1. Classification as a pupil with special needs

If the educational behavioural guidelines listed below are not effective, the pupil will be classed as a pupil with special needs. Each pupil with special needs will receive a support plan with individual support objectives. This plan describes the strengths and weaknesses of the pupil and defines measures in terms of how the behaviour is to be regulated. The pupil will be given preferential support in the class. In special cases the pupil will be supported in small groups or be given individual lessons.

2. Involving a learning support assistant trained in behavioural issues

Should the pupil need individual support to regulate his or her behaviour, the school will be involved in the choice of a behavioural specialist. The costs shall be borne by the parents.

3. Cooperation with other therapeutical centres

If necessary, referrals will be made to external counselling centres (educational or clinical psychologists) in order to have a clarifying diagnosis carried out there. These should contain recommendations for action for the parents and the school. On the basis of this diagnosis the DISD will then prepare individual support plans for the pupil. The parents are advised to carry out the recommended therapy measures. The costs shall be borne by the parents. In addition a timeframe will be determined jointly with the parents until which time the school and extracurricular measures should have been carried out.

4. Support plans

If the measures to regulate behaviour listed below up to now are not effective, the pupil will, as a last measure before being excluded from the school, be given a report card and his/her overall conduct (academic, work and social conduct) will be recorded daily over a period of three months by the subject teacher and the class teacher.

4. Consequences SECONDARY LEVEL

Listed are examples of unacceptable behaviour and consequences. Each incident, however, is to be viewed individually. Educational acumen resp. leeway on the part of the teacher: the teacher has the right to deviate from the "Catalogue of measures" if certain circumstances (e.g. provocation by a pupil, critical situation for which the pupil is not solely responsible) are on hand.

The teacher has the right to treat pupils differently if a clearly different prehistory exists. The teacher has the right to insist on the "Catalogue of measures" if the conditions have been formally fulfilled (there has been a case of misconduct).

Information to the parents shall be provided by email.

The class teacher must document concrete measures. Detailed documentation on the background for these measures is better since the teacher may be obliged to substantiate the measures to the parents, the school management or the KHDA.

If a target agreement is reached, the class teacher must inform all subject teachers about this either in a class conference or in less serious cases through direct communication. The class conference may give recommendations for the concrete dealings with the misconduct of the pupil. These recommendations may also contain further educational measures irrespective of the "Catalogue of measures".

If a pupil disturbs the lesson, the subject teacher is responsible for reacting to the misconduct of the pupil. He must also inform the class teacher of this.

Misconduct by the pupil will also be punished if this occurs outside of lessons if he or she is on the school premises or as long as he or she is wearing the school uniform or if the misconduct takes place in the context of attending the school (e.g. cyber bullying of a fellow pupil on a home computer). Initially the supervising teacher is responsible. Each other teacher has the obligation to intervene if he or she observes the inappropriate behaviour of the pupil and then to inform the supervisory team or the class teacher of the pupil.

5. Target agreements SECONDARY LEVEL

The teacher who has expressed an obligation to keep a target agreement shall inform the parents by email. The parents confirm the email and inform the teacher whether they wish to be present at the meeting with their child.

The pupil will be asked to attend a meeting with the class teacher who records a maximum of four behavioural targets.

The pupil will be obliged to keep records on the card for at least two, maximum three weeks. The subject teachers record after the lessons whether the pupil was able achieve the targets. After the stipulated time has expired, a further meeting will be agreed with the pupil and the parents.

If the targets were achieved on average, the target agreement is considered fulfilled. If the targets were not fulfilled, the class teacher shall decide depending on the number and type of entries, whether the pupil keeps a target agreement for a further period.

6. Report card SECONARY LEVEL

The sequence corresponds to the target agreement.

The principal or head of the level will request the parents and the pupil to attend a meeting and will hand out to the pupil the report card and give instructions on filling out the card. The behaviour of the pupil (social conduct, reliability and due care as well as willingness to learn) will be assessed by each subject teacher over a period of at least 3 weeks. Depending on the behaviour, this period could be extended.

(The pupil can be excluded from the lessons for up to three days. The length of the exclusion is done depending on the number or repeat incidences and the type resp. the extent of the misconduct. This is done after consulting the class conference and must subsequently be approved by the KHDA.)

If these educational measures are not effective, the pupil will be classified as a pupil with special needs and the support systems attached above will apply.

If the last level of the support system also leads to no change in behaviour within three months, the consequence from this, or in the case of a particularly serious incident, will be an application to the KHDA to have the pupil excluded from school. This application will be made in agreement with the school board. The parents have the right to be heard by the board during the consultation for this application.

The German text shall prevail in case of ambiguities or in other cases where there is doubt or where there are problems of interpretation.

INFO FOR TEACHERS

Please sign in the table in your lesson if the pupil has behaved in a POSITIVE manner. If not, write in the table how many times the pupil's behaviour fell short of what is expected (see reverse side).
